SCHOOLS CLOSED UNTIL SEPT. 18TH

Sunday Schools Must Give up Sessions also. Order Effective at Once.

ADAMS COUNTY INCLUDED

Every Place Affected, whether or not Infantile Paralysis has Appeared. Time may be Extended.

After a careful study of the infantile paralysis situation and a long conference with the Advisory Board of the State Health Department, State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon has ordered that all schools and Sunday schools be closed until September 18, and that all "objectionable" movies be closed wherever the department deems it advisable.

All the public and parochial schools of Adams County are affected by this order. The public schools were due to open on September 4th, while the usual time for beginning work in the parochial schools has been the second Monday in September. Neither Gettysburg College nor the Seminary is affected as they are both due to open after the 18th.

Dr. Dixon ordered the following letter sent to city, borough and county school superintendents in Pennsylvania and to the heads of all parochial schools:—

"The State Department of Health of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has decided that all schools, public, private and parochial in this State be closed until Monday, September 18, with possible readjustment then with reference to geographical position, age and attendance of resident pupils."

All academies and colleges are included in the words "all schools," Dr. Dixon said, and when resident pupils are permitted to enter the dormitories, such institutions will be subjected to a careful examination and wherever it is found that any students come from affected districts such students will be kept under close supervision a long time.

"We decided to close all schools" said Dr. Dixon, "because we are just entering upon the season of the year when our past experience and the department records show that infantile paralysis makes the greatest gains. Usually it is in the latter part of August and September that the high water mark of the disease comes, and we felt it would be most unwise to permit the opening of the schools with such conditions existing as now obtain throughout the State.

We decided to close all schools," schools because districts now unaffected might be affected at any time because of the thousands of persons who are either going for or returning from their vacations. If we had permitted some of the schools to open, it might easily have been necessary to have ordered them closed later on, and we believe it will work far less a hardship upon the schools to close them at the beginning of the term than to wait until teacher and pupils are in the harness and then cut into the regular educational system.

"It is practically impossible to effect a complete supervision of the means of transportation of thousands of vacationists because of the great number of persons who travel by automobile. It is not so difficult properly to police the old means of transportation, such as train and ferry, but when it comes to watching the countless automobiles that travel the roads the task becomes herculean, if not altogether impossible.

"The time taken from the school term now can be made up easily with careful management, possibly by adding a little to the June term when we hope to have this miserable disease eradicated.

"It was exceedingly difficult for us to come to a definite conclusion in regard to the closing of schools for it is a serious matter to cut into the working of so vast a mechanism as the educational system of the State, but we felt that it was infinitely more important that the health of children should be maintained than that they should be placed in school at this time. By the 18th of September we hope by watching the situation carefully to be able to open the schools without danger to the children of the Commonwealth. The advisory board has left the advisability of opening on that date to me with the possibility that there will be certain restrictions placed on certain locations".

HOLLINGER—MEHRING

Littlestown Teacher Marries Gettysburg College Graduate.

Miss Mary Mehring, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Mehring, of Littlestown, and Prof. Jacob E. Hollinger, of Carlisle, were married on Tuesday morning in Philadelphia, by Rev. Henry Franklind. The young couple were class-mates at Shippensburg State Normal School, where they first met. For several years Mrs. Hollinger has been the efficient teacher of the Littlestown primary school.

Prof. Hollinger is also a graduate of Gettysburg College and a member of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. This summer he took a special course at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. After Sept. 18th the young couple will be a home to their friends in Huntingdon where Prof. Hollinger is a member of the faculty of Juniata College.

PROFITABLE PICNIC

The net proceeds of the Immaculate Conception Church picnic, which was held in Alwine's Woods near New Oxford last Saturday, amounted to $528.50. Rev. Mark Stock is pastor of this parish.

BABY FOUND BY COUNTY WOMAN

Had been Abandoned by Mother. East Berlin Resident Makes Discovery.

A four months old baby girl was deserted in the toilet of the waiting room of the Pennsylvania railroad station at Hanover Thursday afternoon. The police have no clue to the identity of the child or that of the woman who left her.

Mrs. S. A. Burns, East Berlin, who found the baby, had noticed a woman carrying a basket going into the room, but her attention had not been particularly attracted toward her. According to Mrs. Burns she was about 24 or 26 years old, wore a big black hat, blue blouse and light skirt; was 5 feet 8 inches tall and well proportioned.

Mrs. Burns observed the woman going into the room, leaving it a few minutes later, but did not notice that she left the basket inside. Cries of a baby were heard, but it was thought by those in the waiting room to come from the platform. As they continued Mrs. Burns went into the toilet. She found a basket covered with a newspaper. Removing the paper she discovered the baby. A pillow had been formed with rags.

The infant was turned over to Chief of Police Smeach, and later taken to the home of Mrs. John Powell. Miss Edith C. Kain, York, assistant superintendent of the York Society to Protect Children and Aged Persons, was communicated with by Chief Smeach, and she will take charge of the child. It is supposed that after the woman left the baby she boarded a trolley car for York.

WILL GIVE AID

A. B. Farquhar Sails for France on Saturday.

On Thursday Hon. A. B. Farquhar, York's oldest and best known manufacturer, left for New York City from which place he will sail Saturday on the steamship Lafayette for France. Mr. Farquhar will be a member of the American Industrial Commission which will visit France in a return for the visit made to this country last year by the semi-official French trade commission.

The members of the American commission will make a study of the needs of France when the period of reconstruction comes after the great war. The commission will be composed of nine members, each of which will take charge of a certain department. The agricultural and implement department will be in charge of Mr. Farquhar. Being a manufacturer of these implements and on account of his varied knowledge in such matters lead to the selection of Mr. Farquhar for this phase of the work. Mr. Farquhar expects to be away about six weeks.

WILL PLAN FOR FARMERS' DAY

Boosters' Club this Year to Conduct the Annual Event. Meeting Tuesday.

WILL COME IN OCTOBER

May Allow Exhibitors to Take Choice of Goods instead of Specially Announced Premiums.

Farmers' Day plans will be taken up by the Booster Club at a meeting called for next Tuesday evening when the date and preliminary arrangements will be determined upon by the business men of town.

Ever since Farmers' Day was first established here it has been in the hands of officers and members chosen specially for this purpose and who met only when the annual event was to be planned. It is felt this year that it will be to the advantage of all concerned to have a more permanent association in charge and the Boosters' Club has been prevailed upon to give the matter its attention.

Waynesboro, the only other town in this part of the State at which a similar event is held, has selected Saturday, September 30 for their affair, and this leaves for Gettysburg any one of the Saturdays in October upon which the business men may care to fix.

A number of new ideas will be presented at Tuesday night's meeting. In other years the business houses of town have always specified what premiums they would give for the various exhibits. Waynesboro, however, has found another method more satisfactory. The business men there simply announce premiums of so many dollars' worth of merchandise and leave the selection to the winners. For instance a first prize of five dollars worth of dry goods is given and the winner may divide the amount among as many different articles as he chooses. The merits and faults of this idea will be discussed by the Gettysburg Boosters.

Last year the attendance was far in excess of any other year in which Farmers' Day was held at Gettysburg. Among the other things which contributed to the interest was the presence of two batteries of artillery which took part in the parade. Something equally as attractive will have to be obtained for this year and it is possible that troops here for the Virginia monument dedication may be secured to lend a touch of the military to the event. As yet no announcement of any Regular Army details being sent here has been made but it is likely that some will be on hand for the Virginia unveiling.

The meeting Tuesday evening will be held at eight o'clock in the room in the McKnight Building over the C. A. Blocher jewelry store. A large attendance is specially desired.

FOR BIG TIME AT STOCK SHOW

Races, Games, Band Music, and Fine Exhibits are Promised.

York Springs is preparing to take care of several thousand visitors on Saturday the occasion of the annual stock show at Griest's Park. Last year the crowd was estimated at 1800 and this year a much larger attendance is expected.

Some of the farmers from adjoining sections of York and Cumberland as well as Adams county farmers expect to exhibit their horses, colts, herds of cattle, pens of hogs, sheep and fowls.

The fastest bunch of horses ever on the York Springs track will be in the lineup on Saturday afternoon and that is saying a good deal for some good animals have contested there during the past few years.

There will be something doing every minute on Saturday afternoon. The ball game will be held at one o'clock, judging of stock taking place in the meantime, and the four classes of pacing and trotting races and the running races. A minstrel troupe has been secured by the management and will furnish lots of amusement for the children as well as grown-ups.

A good band will provide the music.

GET SOME PRAISE

Gettysburg Office Giving Best Service of Any Says One Man.

Post office employes, together with many other persons in public service, are usually the object of frequent and unkind censure, while commendation—however well deserved—is seldom forthcoming. All this made specially welcome a written comment received at the Gettysburg post office from a traveling salesman who, in asking a change of forwarding address remarked, "Your office has given me the best service during the two weeks in this section of any place I have ever traveled."

TO KANSAS CITY

Will Attend Large Gathering as Delegate from this State.

Mrs. Salome Stewart left to-day for KansasCity, Missouri, to attend, as a national delegate from Pennsylvania, the meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps which is held at the same time as the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic. Mrs. Stewart has been treasurer of the Association of Army Nurses for the past thirteen years.

SUNDAY FISHING NOT UNLAWFUL

But the Anglers Must be Orderly States Justice in Monocacy Case.

If they keep in mind sobriety, quietness, and respect for the rights of property holders, Frederick county fishermen may angle for the inhabitants of Frederick county streams without fear of violating the law.

This was the gist of an opinion handed down in Frederick to more than a hundred men by Justice August T. Brust in dismissing the nine fisherman who were arrested by Deputy Sheriff Charles White on the charge of fishing in the Monocacy on the Sabbath Day. Long before the hour fixed for the hearing of the case, scores of men, fishermen, many of them, Sabbath Day fishermen, gathered in the court. They came represented with counsel.

A few minutes before 8 o'clock Justice Brust appeared. The Justice asker for the charges. There was a general search of the courtroom for the prosecuting witness, Deputy Sheriff Charles White. But the official, who nabbed the nine fishermen on Sunday along the banks of the Monocacy River was nowhere in sight. He had disappeared.

The attorneys for the defendants at once moved that the prisoners be discharged. There being no prosecuting witness Justice Brust dismissed the men. Those arrested: Alderman E. Guy Albaugh, George E. Van Fossen, Harvey Sunday, Samuel Gardner, John Blumenauer Jr., Jesse Hann, Mr. Barlett, Edward Jones, Buckeystown, and Ernest Speaks, near Frederick.

"It is not a violation of the law to fish on Sunday," began Justice Brust in interpreting the law, "so long as you conduct yourselves in an orderly manner; do not get drunk, trespass on private property, swear, or steal.

"Hunting is a violation of the law. The noise caused by the explosion of the gun constitutes a distrurbance of the peace."

The court room rang with a mighty cheer. The men threw hats in the air and waved their arms in glee.

MEETING HERE FOR GOVERNOR

Suggests Community Picnic when State Party Visits Town on Big Tour.

BRUMBAUGH WILL SPEAK

Arrange their Visit so that Gettysburg will have Distinction of Entertaining them at Noon.

Governor Brumbaugh, Secretary of Agriculture Patton, and other state officials who will come through Gettysburg on Tuesday, September 26, in the third of the tours through the agricultural sections of Pennsylvania, announce that they will spend an hour and a half here from noon to one-thirty, and that the Governor will make a speech at that time.

Aaron I. Weidner, Adams County's representative of the State Department of Agriculture, has received from the official party this information together with the further suggestion that the people of the town and surrounding county hold a community picnic on that day or provide some other means by which there may be secured a general gathering.

The question was taken up to-day with some of the business people of town and various plans are under consideration. The picnic idea is not regarded as feasible by some and it has been suggested that a better plan would be to have the Governor and his party guests at dinner at one of the hotels, and then to have the speaking afterward.

The party will come through here from Lancaster and York and go on West over the Lincoln Highway covering 89 miles in the morning and 93 more before evening. It was suggested that an interesting trip might be made through the apple belt but the plans had been completed for the other route and could not be changed, so Mr. Weidner was informed.

Invitations have been sent from the state capitol to about 1000 friends of Governor Brumbaugh and Secretary of Agriculture Patton to accompany them on the tours of the farming districts of the state next month.

They include a number of personal friends of the governor and men active in business and farming affairs in the state.

BADLY HURT

Wenksville Woman, Knocked Down by Wagon has Broken Collarbone.

Mrs. William Warren, of Wenksville, is recovering from injuries she sustained one day recently when a wagon started suddenly as she was freeing a calf which had been tied to the vehicle. The wagon ran over Mrs. Warren, breaking her collarbone and dislocating her shoulder. She is now recovering.

PREDICTS TWO DOLLAR WHEAT

Authorities now See Higher Prices as Result of Rust Damage.

"Black rust" probably will be the cause of sending wheat prices soaring to unprecedented heights with the coming of the spring wheat output, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. One official says $2 wheat now appears probable.

One of the most severe epidemics of "black rust" ever recorded has swept the wheat belt of the northwest, causing unprecedented damage, presaging a production far below normal.

Commercial reports arriving at the department not only substantiate the predictions of the government experts, but, it is said, tend to place the loss at a far greater figure with correspondingly high prices certain for the fall and winter.

The infected area—Minnesota and the two Dakotas—produces, it is said, the greater part of the spring crop. The reappearance of the Hessian fly, with the inferior quality of grain sown, will tend to reduce greatly the crop in other sections of the country, it is said.

FARM SOLD

Ten Thousand Dollars for Property Near Spring Grove.

The Abraham Rife farm, located south of Spring Grove, has been sold to P. H. Hershey, proprietor of the Hanover canning house. The consideration was $10,000. The farm, containing 162 acres, is improved with a large bank barn and brick dwelling.

Mrs. Agnes B. Crawford has sold to Philip Kershner her 265-acre farm, in Williamsport district, along the Potomac River, for $18,000. The farm has 200 acres of cleared land. One dwelling upon the property is one of the finest colonial houses in Washington county, and was built by General O. H. Williams.

METEOR SEEN

Observed Taking Southerly Course Over Housetops of the Town.

A meteor of unusual brilliance was seen in the eastern skies Thursday evening, headed in a southerly direction. The meteor was seen above the horizon and over the housetops. It was just at sunset and while the sky was still blue that the meteor was observed.

MANY IN SUNDAY SCHOOL PARADE

Officers Elected but Place not Chosen for Next Year's Meeting.

One hundred and fifteen automobiles, with Sunday School workers from every part of the county, wended their way over the streets of Biglerville and Arendtsville, and the road between the two places, Thursday evening in an impressive demonstration of the strength of the county organization. The run came between the afternoon and evening sessions and the annual convention came to a close at night, with no time or place selected for next year's meeting but the probability being that Gettysburg would be chosen by the executive committee.

At the afternoon session on Thursday these officers were elected. president, Prof. Roy D. Knouse, Littlestown; vice presidents, Rev. F. E. Taylor, Gettysburg; Rev. W. K. Fleck, Fairfield; Mervin Wintrode, Littlestown; H. F. Stambaugh, Abbottstown; M. L. Power, Bermudian; and Rev. T. C. Hesson, Arendtsville; corresponding secretary, Miss Lily Dougherty Gettysburg; assistant corresponding secretary, Miss Luella McAllister Gettysburg; recording secretary, Miss Alma Henry, Cashtown; treasurer, I C. Bucher, Bendersville; musical director, I. L. Taylor, Gettysburg.

These department superintendents were named for the coming year: Elementary, Miss Fannie Bushey, East Berlin; Secondary, T. J. Winebrenner, Gettysburg; O. A. B. C., William B. Deardorff, Flora Dale; Teacher Training, H. W. Swartz, Littlestown; Home Department, L. M. Alleman Littlestown; Missionary, Miss Nettie Swartz, New Oxford; Temperance, C. S. Reaser, Gettysburg and Rural, Miss Bessie Raffensperger, Arendtsville.

Delegates chosen for the state convention in York are: Prof. Roy D. Knouse, Littlestown; Miss Lily Dougherty, Gettysburg; and Miss Nora Kauffman, York Springs. The alternates are, Rev. Milton Whitener, Littlestown; Rev. J. B. Baker, Gettysburg; and H. H. Starry, York Springs.

In the evening the church was crowded to capacity for the closing session which was addressed by Rev. Wilmer Hartman, of Middleburg, Md., and P. A. Elsesser, of York.

SOON IN OFFICE

New State Zoologist may go on State Tours.

Prof. J. G. Sanders, the new State economic zoologist, will be in active service about September 10. He has tendered his resignation to the Wisconsin State government and is closing up some matters which have been pending. The new zoologist will meet the Commission of Agriculture when it meets the night before the Governor starts on his first week's tour of the farming regions and may go on some of the runs. The offices are now being renovated.

JOHN STEINOUR FALLS FROM ROOF

Twenty Five Foot Drop Results in Painful but not Serious Injury.

STRUCK BY PAPER ROLL

Lumber Pile both Helps to Break Fall and is Cause for Ugly Wound in the Neck. No Bones Fractured.

John Steinour, of Breckenridge street, sustained a severe shock and a number of painful injuries about nine o'clock this morning when he fell from the roof of the new addition to the Gettysburg furniture factory, alighting on the ground among a lot of lumber.

Mr. Steinour, who is a carpenter employed by Contractor H. James Weikert, was working at the edge of the roof when a large roll of roofing paper started to roll toward him. Mr. Steinour either did not see it coming, or did not have time to get out of the way, for it struck him fairly and with sufficient force to throw him off.

He fell about twenty five feet among a lot of odd lumber. He complained of specially severe pain in his arm, while a piece of wood had penetrated his neck below the chin. He was given first aid treatment at the ground and then taken to his home in an automobile.

A doctor attended him at his home and found that Mr. Steinour had not received any broken bones. The one arm is badly sprained and he is suffering from bruises and shock but otherwise his injuries are of a minor nature.

COUNTY PEOPLE TAKEN BY DEATH

GREEKS EAGER TO FIGHT BULGARS

Intense Feeling Over Bulgar Advance; Fear Trouble.

ALLIES ROUTED ON STRUMA

Invaders, Taking Demir Hissar, Make Prisoners of an Entire Hellenic Regiment.

London, Aug. 25.—Bulgarian troops in Greek Macedonia have occupied Demir Hissar and made prisoners of the entire Eighteenth regiment of Greek infantry (3000 men).

The Greek division (12,000 men) that despite the order of the general staff to retire, is still resisting the Bulgar advance on Seres and Kavala is being rapidly reinforced by volunteers.

From all parts of Greece officers and men are hastening to Salonika to join the entente forces. A detachment of Albanians has also arrived at Salonika.

In view of the intensity of feeling over the Bulgarian advance, a mass meeting planned for Sunday in celebration of the anniversary of the revolution of 1909 is regarded with apprehension at Athens.

The drive of the Bulgarian army against the allied right flank apparently developed into a sharper clash with the entente forces and greater losses to them than had previously been indicated. This is assumed from the official report received from Sofia.

A severe defeat was administered to General Sarrail's troops along the Struma river, northeast of Salonika, on August 21, the statement declares, the entente forces taking flight, leaving the field covered with dead and abandoning quantities of munitions and supplies, including eight machine guns.

The Bulgarian forces have now entrenched themselves on the east bank of the Struma and along the highway to Seres, according to the official statetment from Paris. Their positions here lie in the way of an allied advance along the most direct route into Bulgaria.

Reports as to conditions along the other sectors of the front in the Balkans are conflicting. On the entente side it is announced that the Serbians have successfully taken the offensive along the western end of the line, capturing a height near Lake Ostovo, while Berlin declares the Bulgarians are the aggressors in the fighting in this region. Apparently no important movement is as yet in progress in the center where the main thrust of the entente is expected.

Paris also claims successes on the Struma, asserting that the Bulgarians have been forced to withdraw from the left bank in various places.

The Sofia statement says:

"A squad of hostile cavalry was lured by a maneuver of our cavalry into the range of our infantry fire and literally annihilated.

"French attacks which had been directed for ten days against our positions south and west of Lake Doiran failed completely. This probably is the reason why the general staff of General Sarrail (the allied commander) reports the capture of places which all along have been in the hands of the French, such as the railroad station at Doiran and the village of Doudyell, which was abandoned by the enemy."

ELECTION ON DANISH TREATY

Landsthing Favors This Course Unless Sale of Islands is Postponed.

Copenhagen, Aug. 25.—The landsthing sat is committee and adopted a resolution that if the sale of the Danish West Indies cannot be postponed until after the war the question shall be settled by general elections. The resolution was adopted by 39 to 7. Three members refrained from voting, and thirteen were absent. This resolution will be submitted formally to the landsthing at an open meeting.

King Christian received the leaders of the various parties and thanked them for their efforts to form a coalition cabinet, although he said he regretted they had ben unable to do so.

Motorboat Hermit a Suicide.

New York, Aug. 25.—Stephen M. Van Allen, a recluse, who for more than two years traversed the North river night and day in a luxuriously furnished motorboat, shot himself to death on the boat. A note addressed to "My Mother" said, "I have no money and no place to live." Allen, whose past is shrouded in mystery, bequeathed his body to a medical college.

Germans Lose Two Aeroplanes.

London, Aug. 25.—Germany reports that two German aeroplanes which engaged in battle with French airmen within the German lines over Neale fell to the ground and the occupants of both were killed, says a Central News despatch from Amsterdam. Five allied machines flew over Dison, a suburb of Verviers, dropping bombs, all escaping undamaged.

ALLIES THROW BACK GERMAN ASSAULTS

Teutons Attack French and English Lines on Somme.

Paris, Aug. 25.—After an intense bombardment of the Sovecourt woods, the Germans attacked with grenades the French positions south of the Somme, but without avail, says the war office statement.

Positions between Fleury and Thiaucourt which had been taken by the French were violently shelled by the German guns.

On the Somme front, in the neighborhood of Guilemont, the Germans launched a strong attack in an effort to regain lost ground.

The official London statement says the attack was repulsed after a severe struggle in which the Germans sustained heavy losses.

The determination of the German counter attacks in the Somme gives added emphasis to the statements of Winston Churchill and Lloyd George that the enemy's forces and supports are as numerous and as strong as at any period of the war. If the allies are to conquer it will be through the increasing strength of their armies more than through the waning power of the enemy.

MEDIATORS MEET SEPT. 4

First Conference With Mexicans to be Held in New York.

Mexico City, Aug. 25.—James Linn Rodgers, the American representative to the Carranza government, formally made it known to the foreign office here that the preliminary conferences of the representatives of the United States and Mexico for the settlement of international difficulties would be held at the Biltmore, in New York city, on Monday, September 4.

The Mexican representatives will probably leave here on Saturday. The final conference, it was stated, will be held at some place on the New England coast.

Mr. Rodgers has been ordered by the state department to accompany the Mexican commission. He will act as adviser to the American commissioners in regard to various details of Mexican affairs. The Mexican commissioners probably will go to the United States by way of Eagle Pass.

American affairs in Mexico will be left in the hands of Charles B. Parker, who is now in charge of the records of the American embassy.

LONE AIRSHIP RAIDS ENGLAND

Explosives Fell in Open Fields—No Damage or Casualties Reported.

London, Aug. 25.—England was visited again by a hostile airship. The British official statement concerning the raid says:

"A hostile airship crossed the east coast. A number of incendiary and some high explosive bombs were dropped in open fields. No damage nor casualties are reported. The airship wentt o sea again."

A later statement says fifteen high explosive and fifteen incendiary bombs were dropped.

Italians Claim Gains.

Rome, Aug. 25.—Numerous gains for the Italians were announced by the war office. South of Cima Cece, the Italians took a height from its Austro-Hungarian defenders. A counter attack, delivered by the Teutons in an effort to retake the position, was repulsed. Austro-Hungarian trenches in the sector of Monte Cauniol and at Cima di Cupola were captured by the Italians.

Mine Fatalities Claim Two.

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 25.—Two fatal accidents occurred at the mines here Martin Zerbey, fifty-five years old, of Minersville, was killed at Otto colliery by a fall of coal. John Buchanan, of Mt. Pleasant, fell forty feet to his death at Glendower colliery.

DEUTSCHLAND SAFE IN PORT

Kaiser Congratulates Crew and Owners.

WAS DAMAGED, LONDON HEARS

Bremen a Week Out; Held Back Until Owners Received Word of Safe Progress of Sister Boat.

Berlin, Aug. 25.—The merchant submarine Deutschland arrived at the mouth of the Weser, according to the Overseas News Agency.

The agency says that the Deutschland arrived in the afternoon and anchored before the mouth of the river. All on board are well.

The Vossiche Zeitung publishes an interview with Captain Paul Koenig who expresses appreciation of the attitude of the United States government in taking every necessary measure to prevent violation of neutrality in connection with the departure of the submarine.

Emperor Congratulates Owners.

London, Aug. 25.—According to a Berlin despatch to Amsterdam Emperor William has sent the following telegram to the owners of the Deutschland:

"With sincere pleasure I have just received news of the safe return of the submarine liner Deutschland. I heartily congratulate the owners and builders of the vessels and the brave seamen under Koenig's command."

The message also expresses the intention of the emperor to bestow decorations on members of the Deutschland's crew.

An Exchange Telegraph despatch from The Hague says that the Deutschland arrived in a slightly damaged condition.

The departure for America a week ago of the merchant submarine Bremen is reported in a despatch from Bremen, forwarded from The Hague. It is said the owners of the Deutschland and the Bremen received word seven days ago of the progress being made by the Deutschland on her return voyage and that it was not until they had obtained this information that they permitted the Bremen to depart.

A Copenhagen despach, however, reports the Bremen as well on its way over, saying that Alfred Lohmann head of the Ocean Navigation company, which owns the Bremen, asserts he has received a message from the submarine and that it will arrive in a few days.

The Deutschland took the same route on both her voyages, the despatch says, returning to Germany by the North Sea.

A telegram received at Amsterdam from Bremen, as forwarded by Reuter's correspondent, states that the Deutschland traveled 4200 miles on her homeward voyage. At the beginning the sea was tempestuous, but later it became more calm. The Deutschland proved to be able to navigate the stormy seas excellently. Her engines worked faultlessly. No icebergs were passed on the journey.

TO RENEW U-BOAT WAR

Washington Puzzled by "Manifesto" Scorning the United States.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Mail reports of a "manifesto" recently issued by Admiral von Tirpitz, former head of the German navy, calling for an unrestricted renewal of submarine warfare, have been received from Berlin by the state department.

The despatches are very vague and the text is not included nor is it revealed what official position, if any von Tirpitz now holds.

The "manifesto" was issued about a month ago. It declared a renewal of submarine operations would cripple England seriously and do no harm as far as the United States was concerned, as that country already is doing Germany as much damage as she possibly could, even in a state of war.

Run Auto Into Canal; Women Hurt

Rehoboth, Del., Aug. 25.—Mrs. Edward Riley, of Wilmington, with Miss Kathelyn Duffy and Beatrice Magee of New York, and Miss Grace Holder and John Ludwig, of Pittsburgh, ran off the Rehoboth bridge in her motor car into the government canal, seriously injuring herself and Miss Duffy. The others were slightly hurt. The car turned over twice before landing in the canal upside down.

Archbishop Condition Less Hopeful.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 25.—The condition of Archbishop John Lancaster Spalding, who has been ill two weeks following prostration from the heat, was unfavorable. He was able to take nourishment, however, and his physician said he might recover.

MORE PLAGUE DEATHS IN PHILADELPHIA

Four Die and Fourteen New Cases Reported.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25.—Four deaths from infantile paralysis and fourteen new cases of the disease were reported in this city.

Two of the children, a brother and sister, were dead when the inspector from the health department reached their home.

The total number of deaths is 101 and the cases number 363.

Five new cases were reported in Camden.

Plague Less In New York.

New York, Aug. 25.—Health department officials were encouraged by the reports of the infantile paralysis epidemic.

They showed a substantial decrease in the number of deaths and new cases. During the twenty-four hour period thirty children died and 106 were stricken. This compares with Wednesday's figures, forty-two deaths and 131 new cases.

The daily average of new cases thus far this week has been 111, against 130 last week, and the death average remains unchanged at 33. Patients discharged as recovered now number 187.

NEW SHIP LINE FOR PHILA.

Japanese Company Wants to be Assured of Return Cargoes.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25.—Philadelphia practically is assured of a terminal for a steamship concern which will bring large cargoes of sugar from the Philippines, if sufficient cargo can be obtained for the vessels upon their return voyages.

This was announced by Assistant Director Hasskarl, of the department of wharves.

With a view of studying the facilities of this port an inspection was made by A. S. Mihara, representing the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japan Mail Steamship company, Ltd.), and his secretary, K. O. Takahashi, Owen H. Brunner, of the Owen Brunner Lumber company, and Messrs. Betz & Williams, of the Philadelphia Lumber exchange, under the direction of Mr. Hasskarl.

The Japan Mail Steamship company operates eighty steamships with a total tonnage of 450,000, while other vessels are being built or are contemplated.

Pays $363,000 Inheritance Tax.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 25.—Payment of an insurance tax of $316,010.43 on the estate of Frederick Weyerhaeuser, a lumberman, who died on April 4, 1914, and of $13,730.29 on the estate of his wife, was made. This makes the total inheritance tax paid by the Weyerhaeuser estate $362,080.72, and the amount of property taxed $11,604,322.

Russians Recapture Mush.

Petrograd, Aug. 25.—Russian forces operating in southern Turkish Armenia have reoccupied Mush, captured by the Turks on August 8, says an official communication issued by the war department. The statement adds the Russians captured 2300 prisoners.

FINDS YOUNGEST SOLDIER.

Boy of Twelve Complains That They Will Not Let Him Fight.

"I believe I have found my youngest soldier," exclaimed King George during his visit to the front, when he saw a twelve-year-old boy among the Northamptons.

But little Joseph Lefevre was not English. He is the son of a dead Belgian soldier and was found wandering about under shell fire at Ypres, adopted by the battalion and placed on its rolls. He told his story in French to the king and said.

"They will not let me go up to fight, but keep me back with the transport."

"As I was going to suggest and, being a soldier, you will have to obey orders," said the king.

Maternal Instincts.

As a rule it is the mother of a few children who develops the maternal instinct most fully and most admirably, for she has time to realize and to follow out its manifold bearings. The sorely-pressed mother of a swarm is forced to be content if she can fill their clamorous stomachs, keep decent clothes on their backs and send them out with tolerably clean faces.

Couldn't Shoot Straight.

Little Ned had been a bad boy, swearing in the presence of the preacher. His mother had corrected him, telling him that the lightning would strike him if he was profane. Young America looked solemn, then his face brightened as he replied: "I say, mamma, I guess he meant that bolt for me which struck the church next door, but the angels can't shoot straight."

DROP TWO TO MARTINSBURG

Gettysburg now Holder of Last Place for Balance of the Season.

THREE PITCHERS IN USE

Had First Game Won but Sherman Weakened in Ninth and Mountaineers Took them Both.

The cellar champions tightened their hold on the sixth station Thursday afternoon by dropping a double header to Martinsburg 5-4 and 8-3. Durboraw and Oyler were out of play on account of sickness, Kelly taking the center field position, while Hart went to third and Bigler to short stop.

First Game

Leading 4-0 at the end of the eighth, the Ponies saw an easy victory in store for them but Sherman blew up in the ninth and gave four hits which, with an error by Herman, tallied a quartet of runs. In the tenth Morris singled, stole second, and scored when Hart threw wild to first to catch Johnson.

Gettysburg's runs were made in the first and fourth. In the opening inning Herman singled, stole second, took third when Dean errored on Plank's grounder and beat it home during an argument at first base. In the third Koehler and Stein singled; Hart hit to Bates who threw wild to catch Koehler, the ball striking Artie on the back and letting him travel home. Stein scored on Sherman's out, and Hart tallied on Bates' error of Kelly's grounder.

PLAN TO MAKE FLOODS USEFUL

Storage Reservoirs Are Advocated to Stop Waste

WOULD BENEFIT NAVIGATION

Proposal Made That All Communities in Pennsylvania Assist in Getting Needed Legislation at the Next Session.

It is believed by many competent engineers that the plan evolved at Pittsburgh for treating flood waters at their source, would, if adopted on all the tributaries of the Ohio river, put an end to floods and at the same time assist in providing a navigable stage during the entire year after the system of locks and dams on that stream has been completed, and the same methods could be applied to other rivers in Pennsylvania.

As many other local communities have done, Pittsburgh started its flood investigations with the thought of relieving that city alone. It was found that for a comparatively small amount of money Pittsburgh could be protected from ordinary floods, but it was decided that the question was a broader one than mere protection of one locality and that the essential part of any effort toward improvement was flood prevention. The construction of storage reservoirs was suggested and it was found after the most careful of surveys that reservoir sites existed in the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, the two first tributaries to the Ohio, which had a combined capacity sufficient to greatly reduce the highest flood Pittsburgh has ever experienced, that these reservoirs would greatly relieve low water conditions in the three rivers, through releasing the stored waters during periods of drought and that this would provide the river with a better flow at all times for sanitary and manufacturing purposes.

Want Flood Prevention.

After making these discoveries the Pittsburgh investigators abandoned their idea of mere flood protection and have since been bending their efforts toward flood prevention. One plan that has been proposed is the creation of flood prevention districts to assess properties benefited by the prevention of floods and make charges for water furnished manufacturing interests from the stored supply. Government supervision of the work and participation in its expense is advocated. Likewise the states and communities directly benefited are expected to furnish their just proportion.

This idea is by no means a new one as such schemes are now in successful operation in Germany, where many flood prevention works have been constructed under government paternalism and the expense borne in the same way, but it is new as applied to users in Pennsylvania. There is a striking example of the same sort in the case of Dayton, Ohio, which, following its great flood of 1913, had the necessary legislation enacted whereby flood prevention reservoirs are being constructed at this moment which, it is claimed, will forever make a recurrence of such a flood impossible.

It is believed that various communities in Pennsylvania desiring river regulation should foster the formation of flood prevention districts, such districts to be similar in their formation to the Mississippi levee districts. It must not be understood that local protection measures are to be disregarded. Such is not the case, but it is felt that the failure to stop floods at their source when it is possible to do so is wasting a valuable supply of water that could be put to some beneficial use during times of low water. Local protection measures serve a good purpose, but it is believed that the whole problem should be treated in its broader aspect.

Process Is Slow.

The process is naturally going to take time and much education. The authorities at Washington are being induced to take the initiative and help finance the work. And if public sentiment does not crystalize on this subject sooner, it more than likely will after the Ohio is completely canalized because then it will be found that in certain seasons of the year the locks and dams cannot be operated for lack of water and that storage reservoirs are a necessary auxiliary for maintaining a nine foot stage the year round.

Many advocates of river canalization claim that with locks and dams the fullest use of the streams of this country can be obtained. Yet it is positively known that the Monongahela river which is the only stream in the United States having a complete system of locks and dams is forced to suspend operations in some of the summer months because of lack of water. Those favoring storage reservoirs claim with reference to the Monongahela river that such works are absolutely necessary for the maintenance of year-round navigation.

GEOMETRY ON THE BROILER.

As a Study It Is Pretty Well Roasted by This Caustic Critic.

Euclid is a gentleman from whom credentials ought to be required. He has long held a prominent place in education as a matter of tradition. "Just why should John and Sally study plane geometry, and indeed how does it come about that they are studying it?" That is a question which cannot be put too plainly to teachers of mathematics.

I shall consider for a moment two possible answers: Geometry is useful, you may be told, or geometry affords excellent mental discipline. Geometry is useful. Well, how useful and in what ways? Professor David E. Smith, professor of the teaching of mathematics in Teachers' college, tells us, "Not more than 25 per cent of the propositions (in geometry) have any genuine applications outside of geometry." And a distinguished physicist has assured me that the 75 per cent of propositions that are of no use are not even needed to prove the 25 per cent that are of some use. The teachers of plane geometry have therefore a very considerable task if they are going to justify the time spent on geometry on the ground that geometry is useful.

Nor is their task easier if they take the other horn of the dilemma. Suppose one did get "mental discipline" from geometry. Is it the sort of mental discipline that life calls for and gives?

Geometry as taught is a deductive science. That is, from certain assumptions called axioms and postulates a long series of propositions is developed. If the study of geometry really developed that kind of thinking, whom would it help but lawyers? For practical life calls for a very different type of thinking.

In actual life people observe, or they should observe, and on this basis make a limited inference which leads to action. If the action taken fails, they observe further, construct other hypotheses and act again. It is the method of trial on error.

If there is to be any mental discipline, ought it not to be of the type represented by science rather than the type represented by the conventional treatment of geometry? — Abraham Flexner in Atlantic Monthly.

Evelyn and the Simplon Pass.

The Simplon pass was a famous highway of travel long before Napoleon constructed the highroad. Milton came home that way from his grand tour, and so did John Evelyn. The latter traveler went in fear of his life, not only expecting avalanches to fall on him, but being apprehensive lest bears and wolves should assail him. The only actual harm which happened, however, was that his companion's dog killed a goat belonging to one of the peasants and that heavy compensation had to be paid—"a pistole," says the diary, "for the goat and ten more for attempting to ride away."

Natural Curiosity.

"Madam," said the persuasive agent, "I have here an article that no housewife can afford to do without."

"Huh," replied the sallow faced woman at the door, "I've done without so many things since I married Mr. Perkins I'd jest natcherly like to see somethin' I can't afford ter do without!"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Rex Beach Short Stories

"She's a public menace, and I'm not restin' easy till Pete takes her off the market," George explained to a crowd at the post an hour later.

"What's her blemishes?" inquired Big Mit, the faro dealer.

George's loquacity choked him, his story coming forth mangled and irrelevant, yet soaked with feeling.

"I've drug her clean from town," he concluded, "workin' till I've lost the respect of my own dog team. She hung to the sled like a bobcat, while me and Peneeche double tripped it through the bad places. She'd set on the load till she'd get frost bit rather than walk, and in order to warm up she'd nag me till I'd have to speak my mind, which is something I seldom do to a lady. As to dissipatin' unpleasant animosities, she can clean her system so fast she'd make a Gatlin' gun sound like a stutterin' Swede."

"Here comes Mac!" cried some one, and the groom entered.

"Have you got her?" he questioned eagerly.

"Sure! She's upstairs!"

"Whoopee!" shouted the groom. "Line up, boys, and diagram your booze while I hunt up my bride. I've got money and a wife to spend it on."

The crowd lunged at the bar with a yell, and he continued noisily:

"Here's to the first bride of Candle Creek."

From above came a female voice:

"Is that you, Pete?"

Peter started so violently as to slop his liquor upon the grinning George. Truly, here was an eager lover. A moment later on the stairs above appeared a large red woman, who swished downward and flung herself at the gaping Pete with a cry of great gladness.

But McDonald was a man of action. He ducked through the crowd, and, missing him, the bride floundered into the arms of the astonished whaler. Righting her against the bar, George moved nervously away, while the crowd stared in amazement.

"It's the wrong one!" yelled McDonald, pointing with shaking finger.

"What!" cried Big George, while the lady showed symptoms of collapse.

"That ain't her. I told you to bring Kitty that works in the Monte Cristo restaurant." He glared at George, who mopped gathering sweat from his brow. "This here's Maggie Lanahan, from the Monte Carlo theater. I left town on purpose to get shed of her. I wouldn't give ye $5 for her, let alone $500."

"It's a lie!" screamed Miss Lanahan, flaming up like a plumber's torch. "You begged me to marry you, and now that you're rich you're trying to throw me down, but I'll"—

McDonald tore open the door and fled out into the chill evening.

Turning, the lady emptied such vituperation upon Big George that he shriveled and squirmed, while the male population of Candle City snickered. At this, bursting into wretched sobs, she fled upstairs.

The object of her obloquy wrestled with his speech, then, moistening his dried lips, gave clearance to hoarse curses.

"How could I tell?" he cried. "I lost the bill of lading and remembered Pete said Monte Something-or-other, so I still hunts the Monte Carlo, baggin' this critter. Do you mind what he said about leavin' town on her account, boys? Well, it's my idea he's compromised himself, and we'd ought to make him marry her. Anybody can see she'd make a bully runnin' mate for him. She's that robust she'd never miss a meal a year."

Mercenary motives and visions of a completed vengeance lent eloquence to George's plea, while his harangue had the more weight inasmuch as McDonald was very unpopular. Moreover, beauty in distress appeals to the American heart, no matter how strained the relation between fact and fancy. The woman's final tears had done much to wash out the memory of her tongue lashing.

"He's deceived this innocent lamb," said George. "Can we stick around and see a snow white dove's life blasted by a rummy like Pete? Can we let him spoil this beautiful flower?"

"Well, hardly!" exclaimed the listeners.

"Call a meeting on him," cried one.

"If what she says is true, we'll make him marry her."

"That's right, call a miners' meeting," and George climbed the stairs, his beaming contentment lighting the shadows.

The rejected import was oscillating between extremes of hysterical rage and lachrymal depression.

"Look a-here," George began, "don't you worry—just lemme operate the obsequies, and you'll be one of the McDonalds in a week. We'll slough you off if it takes a wheel, for it's ag'in precedent to have detached females disturbin' the magnetic balance. You won't be no drug on the market."

"How good you are," she sighed. "The protection of a strong man is very grateful to a woman." She spoke dreamily after her rage threatening to fall to—at him.

"You stand pat," he admonished, "and I'll do some genteel jury packin' that would excite the envies of a traction company."

Next day on the storm door of the post a note proclaimed that Peter McDonald, having flouted the girlish affections of Margaret Lanahan, on Thursday next was called upon to do her justice before the eyes of men. A copy of this was inserted through a crack of the defendant's door behind which he lay hidden.

News of the public animus reached McDonald daily, however, by his partner, who told him through the plank door that sentiment ran higher and higher in favor of the lady. It was rumored that she was disconsolate and even declined with lassitude the most tempting viands—to wit, the can of pineapple that "Big Mit" had saved for Christmas, a share of which had been promised to each of the 200 Candleites.

George played upon the village feelings with skillful fingers. Which, coupled with his personal popularity, led to murmurs against the groom that grew constantly. Every night he climbed the stairs and reported to the lady, who seemed to hold her weight and spirits remarkably well despite contrary rumors.

"You just stay buried, and throw out a few moans when the crowd's downstairs—it all helps. The boys has promised to vote for you. Big Mit'll move that bein' as you're the early bird, you're entitled to a choice of the unmarried worms. You'll get the matrimonial freedom of the camp, 'cause we don't do things by halves up here. Then you just lay alongside of Mac, throw your grapples acrost and board him. I'll have a missionary there to hitch you up."

"I chose you, George. You're such a masterful man."

"How good you are," she said. "You're such a masterful man! I wish Pete was like that."

On the morning of the miners' meeting but one man was absent. He lay quaking behind his barricaded door, an ax at hand to repel boarders. The rest of the population came; even the Laps from up river drove in with their reindeer, and old Dog Face brought his Eskimo men from the Sand Spit to see the whites make medicine at the marriage feast.

Lacking the subtlety of an accomplished fixer, George passed among his friends, coaching with stertorous whispers, desisting only when Barker as chairman, enthroned in dignity upon the counter, a cracker box beneath him, called for order. Then he stole quietly out for the absent member.

Slipping up to McDonald's cabin, he heard the nervous sounds of its occupancy.

"Beats all what a perilous pastime this matchmakin' is," mused George. "He's liable to split me into kindlin' wood before I get my mits mortised over his gullet, but here goes."

He backed away, then hurled his great bulk at the door. It gave way, and in the shadows beyond he glimpsed the face of the terrified groom. Big George seized him and crushed him against his chest, wrenching loose the uplifted hatchet.

"Lord, I never see such a bashful lover!" he panted. "We're all jealous over you, but we aim to join two lovin' hearts if diplomacy can do it. 'Tain't everybody has a best man like me to break trail clean up to the altar."

A terrific roar arose in Barker's place when the kicking prisoner was thrust into the room, and, inasmuch as it is not given to all men to succeed against misfortune, George was permeated by a gentle glow.

Something in the look of the men struck him, however, as he bore the tortured bridegroom before him. They whistled, shouted and stamped madly.

"Big Mit" seized his hand, while others fell on him with acclamation.

"You're all right, pal."

"We never savvied your play at all."

Men whacked him on the back and bellowed in glee, while a babel of congratulations beat over him.

"What in blazes do you all mean?" cried George, shaking himself free.

His answer materialized out of the throng, in the shape of Miss Lanahan, who came forward blushing beneath her cosmetics. Advancing with a smile of affectionate assurance, she spoke:

"I chose you, George. You're such a masterful man."

In the silence which he strove to break McDonald wriggled from the whaler's nerveless fingers and cackled shrilly. George's roving eyes sped over the circle of grinning faces and thence to the window. As he gazed blankly around the house corner, with jingle and scurry came his own dog team, urged by Peneeche's singing whip. They were going for wood, running light and fast. Self preservation stirred within the big man. He bolted.

The igloo of Chief Dog Face lies eight miles below Candle City. Kittu, his daughter, hacked with a hand ax at the carcass of a frozen seal, for it neared meal time, when there came to her the "Yip! Yip! Yip!" of a dog driver in haste.

From up trail whirled a six dog team, running madly beneath the curling lash of a man, who crouched midway of the swaying basket sled, lifting his dogs with the sharp running cry of the Malamute. Anon he glanced fearfully back, urging them to further speed.

It is meet that all travelers pause at the village of Dog Face and warm, but this man burst through the cluster of huts and vanished down the coast trail for Nome. This was the stranger still, for Kittu recognized Big George—Big George, who was not as other white men, but ate of the Eskimo food and spoke their language.

Kittu had been to the mission, and was surpassing wise in the ways of the paleface. She had seen their marvelous methods, man to man, also their strenuous courtships when they felt the hunger to mate. Now she spoke in the light of much experience:

"Somebody dead, I think," then on consideration said, "No! Him too quick go; nobody dead. Him goin' to get married."

DIFFER OVER RATE RAISE

Railroads Want Guarantee They Will be Granted.

SETTLEMENT IS HALTED

Brotherhood Leaders Oppose Plan to Have Congress Create Commission to Arbitrate Labor Disputes.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Objections which developed at a meeting of railroad presidents and managers to points in the tentative plan evolved by the committee of eight presidents considering ways to avoid the threatened general strike, resulted in a further postponement of final action.

A statement issued by the railroad executives summed it up this way:

"At the invitation of President Wilson, Messrs. Hale Holden, Judge R. S Lovett and Daniel Willard went to the White House at noon and held a short conference with the President.

"A conference of the railroad executives was held at three o'clock and a new phase of the situation of some importance was laid before the conference by the special committee.

"After considerable discussion without definite action, an adjournment was taken. In the meantime the special committee of presidents will continue its labors."

The special committee's plan drafted after a week's consideration, would provide for granting an eight-hour "basic" day to the trainmen, but with assurances that every effort would be made by the administration to secure a freight rate increase to recompense the roads, and further assurance that congress would be asked to enact legislation to insure settlement of future labor disputes through an investigating commission.

The entire plan has not been laid before all the executives and managers, but its points have been discussed at various conferences. It developed after the meeting that objection had been raised to the freight rate increase feature on at least two grounds.

It was argued by some that there can be no assurance of a rate increase because no one could say what the interstate commerce commission might do; and that some of the most important officials of the country already have made it plain that they are not in sympathy with any move which may mean a rate increase.

It was pointed out also that although President Wilson has expressed his belief that such a rate increase should be granted if the eight-hour day is given the employes, no one can tell how the next election is coming out and that there can by no possibility be an increase before next March or probably later.

Attention was called, too, to the fact that the commission hitherto has held that it cannot consider wage standards in dealing with proposed rate increases, although legislation by congress might remove that difficulty.

The principal arguments against the idea of a permanent commission for the prevention or settlement of strikes were that it would almost certainly be fought by labor in congress, and that while President Wilson might be entirely willing now to such legislation he might not be in a position to do so when it was proposed. Representatives of the brotherhoods who heard of this phase of the plan were plainly against it. A counter suggestion was heard among the presidents that strike questions should be left to the interstate commerce commission with power to investigate and make a public report of their findings with a strike held in abeyance pending the investigation.

Five Workmen Killed at Erie.

Erie, Pa., Aug. 25.—At least five men were killed and many more injured at the plant of the National Foundry company as the result of the collapse of a trestle carrying two heavy cranes. The men, who were working under the trestle, were buried in the wreckage and the exact number of dead will not be known until it has been cleared away.

Sees Plot In Bread Prices.

Washington, Aug. 25.—Charges that packing companies, seeing a possibility that meat consumption might increase if prices for bread are raised have had a hand in the movement for higher bread prices, were made by Representative Rainey, Republican, of Illinois, before the federal trade commission.

Typhoid Probe In Harrisburg.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 25.—Twenty cases of typhoid fever have been reported to the city health department since August 1, and Dr. J. M. J. Rannick, city health officer, has begun an investigation into the milk and ice cream supply of the city. Tests show the water supply to be free from typhoid bacilli.

Bolt Kills Woman and Baby.

Harrisonburg, Va., Aug. 25.—Lightning attracted to a wire clothesline killed Mrs. Grant Herring as she was gathering her washing in the face of an approaching storm. The bolt then jumped to a doorway nearby and killed a neighbor's child.

The Weather.

Forecast for this section fair today and probably fair tomorrow; light variable winds.

15,000 P. O. S. OF A. IN HUGE PARADE

Procession in Philadelphia Ends Jubilee.

Philadelphia, Aug. 25. — Between 15,000 and 20,000 men, members of the Patriotic Order, Sons of America, paraded on Broad street, bringing to a close the golden jubilee of the order and the annual state convention, which has been in progress in this city since Tuesday.

The parade was reviewed by Mayor Thomas B. Smith, Judge John M. Patterson, members of city councils and city officials, also officers of the order and invited guests, from a grandstand at Broad and Locust streets.

Participating in the turnout were camps and delegations from various cities in the east.

The parade followed the installation of the newly elected officers, which took place at the final session of the convention in the Academy of Music.

The officers were installed by the national president, J. Calvin Strayer, and the national vice president, William J. Hepps.

A resolution was passed opposing the opening of the order to any but American born citizens. The session also authorized the appointment of a committee of eleven to consider the erection of an orphanage at Chalfont.

THREE KILLED IN WRECK

Tender of Locomotive Jumps Track on Step Grade.

Easton, Pa., Aug. 25.—Three men were killed when the tender of a locomotive on the Lehigh & New England railroad jumped the track between Nazareth and Bath.

Five coal cars piled up on the locomotive, which had been going down a steep grade with eight cars. The dead are: Charles Edwards, fireman; Floyd Merrihue, brakeman, and Harry Ache, engineer, all of Pen Argyl.

Six men formed a crew which had arrived at the grade with twenty loaded coal cars, drawn by two locomotives. Owing to the steep grade, the train was divided at that point, and the two locomotives brought twelve cars down the grade. One then to the top to bring down the remaining eight cars. The accident followed.

Close Pittsburgh Trust Company.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 25.—The Central Trust company was closed by order of the state banking department, an annuncement posted on the door giving bad loans and overdrafts as the cause. In its last report to the banking commissioner the company reported total deposits as $561,334. The bank, which had a capital of $150,000, was located in the wholesale produce district, and its business was almost exclusively among commission men.

New Method of Teaching Children

Winifred Stoner, Jr., who could recite the first book of Vergil when she was three years old, could speak six languages when she was six, is a finely developed child physically, alert, amiable, joyous, normal in every particular. She was prepared for college at the age of ten. The gain in time made in imparting knowledge to her was solely the result of utilizing all the time children usually devote to play for acquiring information. This was accomplished through an advanced Froebel system originated by Mrs. Stoner. Every game contained interesting information, and the familiar objects in daily contact were fraught with charm. The trees, the birds and flowers, colors, sounds—everything contributed to natural education. Memory was installed; concentration and observation were developed.

WORTH REMEMBERING.

That perseverance often outruns genius.

That everything God does means something.

That a stingy man is always cheating himself.

That people with no faults have few friends.

That temptations resisted are stepping stones to heaven.

That it is impossible to travel far with the man who rides a hobby.

That the best time to clear up a misunderstanding is before sunset.

That nobody ever has any intention of going to hell when they first hear of the place.

The Biter Bit.

A Scottish farmer was selling wool one day to a carrier, and after weighing it he went into the house to make out an invoice. When he came back he missed a cheese that had been standing on a shelf behind the outer door. Glancing at the bag of wool, he observed that it had suddenly increased in size.

"Man," he said to the carrier, "I had clean forgot the weight o' that bag. Let's pit it on the scales ance mair."

The carrier could not well refuse. The bag was, of course, found to be heavier by the weight of the cheese inside. A new invoice was made out and the crestfallen carrier went away.

The farmer's wife at once missed the cheese and, rushing to the yard told her husband that some thief had stolen it.

"Na, na, Meg," replied the farmer quietly; "I hae just selt the cheese for 2 shillin's the pund. —Tit-Bits.

Albinos.

The human species offers frequent examples of individuals attacked by albinism. It is found oftenest among men of the black race. White albinos have skin of a peculiar paleness, blond hair, white or colorless beard, pink iris and red pupils. The negro albino has skin of variable aspect. In some cases it is white as milk and in others it is like wax or, rather, resembles the hue of a corpse.

LEMON COOKIES.—Half a cupful of shortening, a cupful of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of sour milk or buttermilk, a teaspoonful of baking soda, two eggs, flavoring to taste, a teaspoonful of grated lemon rind and four cupfuls of flour. Cream the sugar and shortening until light, add the well beaten egg, the sour milk or the buttermilk and the soda dissolved in a tablespoonful of hot water. Add the flavoring and lemon rind, mix well and add sifted flour enough to make a stiff dough, roll out a quarter inch thick, cut with cookie cutter, sprinkle the top with a little sugar and press a raisin or nut in the center of each. Bake in hot oven ten to twelve minutes.

Hot Chocolate Sauce.—Two cupfuls of water, half a cupful of sugar, a square of bakers' chocolate, a tablespoonful of cornstarch or two tablespoonfuls of flour, a tablespoonful of butter and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix the sugar and cornstarch, then add the boiling water and let boil until smooth, stirring constantly for five minutes. Add the chocolate melted over hot water and stir until smooth. Last add the butter and vanilla and serve hot. All canned fruits may be served with this sauce, hot or cold.

Marshmallow Gingerbread.—Half a cupful of shortening, half a cupful of molasses, half a cupful of sugar, an egg, a cupful of sour milk, a teaspoonful of ginger, a teaspoonful of salt, one and three-quarter teaspoonfuls of soda, two cupfuls of flour, marshmallows. Cream the shortening and add the sugar and cream, then the molasses, well beaten egg, sour milk and sifted dry ingredients. Beat vigorously and pour into a greased pan and bake twenty-five minutes in a moderate oven. Remove, separate crosswise with a fork and place marshmallow halves between layers. Let stand three minutes in the oven. Remove, cut into squares and serve with or without whipped cream.

Long Journeys Made by Whales.

The whales that swim about the islands which lie off the coast of Norway and Finland in March and April travel immense distances. In May they turn up at the Azores or even at the Bermudas and sometimes pay a visit to the Antilles. They swim fast, for in June they are back again off Norway. Some of these whales have been known to bring back evidences of where they have been, for harpoons of the peculiar kind used off the coast of South America have been found stuck in them.—St. James' Gazette.

The New All-Over Costume

The new all-over costume which bids fair to be one of the furores of early Autumn. This model is fashioned from brown gabardine.

Here is what promises to be the dominant fashion of Fall—the all-over costume. It is carried out in dark brown gabardine trimmed with moire silk and deep fringe. Embroidered squares done in rope silk ornament the lower edge of the skirt, appearing above the fringe. In medium size the costume requires 4¼ yards 54-inch material, with 1¼ yard lining 36 inches wide, 1 yard moire silk and 6 yards fringe.

The construction of the frock has been greatly simplified for the home dressmaker, who will find it no trouble to reproduce it if the construction guide and directions are followed carefully. First face the front of the lining, keeping in mind that the large "O" perforations indicate the center front. Then close the seam and sew the convertible collar to the neck.

To make the blouse, side and back gores, first gather the front between double "TT" perforations. Arrange on lining and close under arm seam. Stitch gathers to position, lower edges even. Single large "O" perforation at lower edge of front indicates center-front. Turn hem at front edge of side gore on small "o" perforations; gather between double "TT" perforations. Sew to back as notched; turn under back gore on slot perforations, lap to small "o" perforations in back, and side gore, notches even; stitch above side gore, press plait; close seam. Lap under-arm edge of back to small "o" perforations in front, matching large "O" perforations, stitch leaving seam free about 2½ inches from lower edge to slip belt under. Close shoulder seam as notched.

Next, close the back seams of the deep collar and sew to neck. Adjust facing on collar and under front, edges even; lap right back of collar and facing on left, matching small "o" perforations; fasten with a button and buttonhole.

Turn under the side edge of the skirt on single small "o" perforations for a hem. Gather between double "TT" perforations. Sew to lower edge of blouse front (on right side), center-fronts even; and bring hem to large "O" perforation in lining back. Stitch tape under gathers from center-front to left side edge.

Now, form plaits in the belt and adjust to position, center-fronts even. The sleeves are made last and the work is begun by closing the seams, easing fullness between notches at the elbow. Close seam of wrist cuff as notched to large "O" perforation and line. Sew to sleeve as notched, small "o" perforation at inside seam of sleeve; bring small "o" perforations near pointed ends together and tack. Sew sleeve in armhole as notched, small "o" perforation at shoulder seam easing any fulness.

Add fringe and embroidery last.

Calling Customers for You!

THE newsboy is the bell ringer of modern commercial life. He keeps the public supplied with its great shopping guide---the daily news paper.

Every line of advertising in this newspaper is selling goods to some one and for some one, it is helping people who have wants to fill—helping buyer and seller.

Up-to-date storekeepers find it profitable to watch newspaper advertising with microscopic eyes.

When they see goods they carry in stock advertised by the manufacturer, they bring them forward—they put them in their window. The storekeepers know people will want to see them.

They co-operate with the newspaper advertising, and they find this co-operation sells goods for them.

They know the customers attracted to their store by newspaper advertised goods may be made permanent friends. They know their co-operation marks them as up-to-date merchants.

DRINK WATER TO AVOID SICKNESS SAYS AUTHORITY

Glass of hot water before breakfast daily keeps the doctor away.

Sanitary science has of late made rapid strides with results that are of untold blessing to humanity. The latest application of its untiring research is the recommendation that it is as necessary to attend to internal sanitation of the drainage system of the human body as it is to the drains of the house.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise, splitting headache, stuffy from a cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, can, instead, feel as fresh as a daisy by opening the sluices of the system each morning and flushing out the whole of the internal poisonous stagnant matter.

Everyone, whether ailing, sick or well, should, each morning before breakfast, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast. While you are enjoying your breakfast the phosphated hot water is quietly extracting a large volume of water from the blood and getting ready for a thorough flushing of all the inside organs.

The millions of people who are bothered with constipation, bilious spells, stomach trouble, rheumatic stiffness; others who have sallow skins, blood disorders and sickly complexions are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone a pronounced crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

WELDED LINKS

By BARBARA PHIPPS

They had passed through a bitter quarrel, the first real storm that had ever broken upon them.

A few hours later they met and agreed to separate. There should be no divorce—at least not at present—and they would divide the children, the boy to go with the father, the girl to remain with the mother. The father was now packing his belongings, something he had not done for a long while, and it came hard to him, not only because he was not used to it, but because of the sadness of breaking up a home.

The mother was in the nursery with the children. Her little boy was on her lap, the mother caressing him in a way he did not understand. Now and again she would start to go to her husband, fearing that he would not get his packing done aright. But the specter of discord interposed. All that had passed forever. She could endure the separation stoically were it not for the children. Poor little things, unconscious of what was before them! Every harsh word that had been spoken between their parents was to bring a pang to their young hearts that would wear upon them till they were grown and had families of their own, and even then it would be a spot sore to the touch.

A conveyance was to call for the father and the boy at 4 o'clock. The child's belongings had been collected by the mother, and as she deposited them in the trunk each article seemed to fall like a clod on his coffin. The playthings he loved smote her to the heart. Finally she got them all in. But it was not like a disagreeable work done and relegated to the past; it was the beginning of a horror that would never end.

At 4 o'clock a carriage drove up to the door. She heard its wheels on the pavement and, going to the window, looked out. Tears started afresh. She stood facing the window to conceal them. Her husband came to the door, and she heard him say:

"Ethel!"

How many times she had heard her name spoken by that same voice, always lovingly, until the day of the quarrel, when it had burned like lightning. Now, she fancied there was in it a deep sadness. She waited to dry her tears, then turned and faced him.

"Say goodby to Robbie."

Goodby to Robbie; better goodby to life.

She steeled herself for the parting. Approaching the boy, she clasped him in her arms. The children looked at their father and mother and saw that some trouble hung over them, but they knew not what. Releasing her boy, she went to a closet, took down his overcoat and his hat and began to put on the coat.

"Where am I going, mamma?" he asked, with a trembling voice.

She tried to tell him, but she could not speak the words. A look told her husband to do it for her.

"You are going away with me, Robbie," he said.

"When am I coming back?"

There was an ominous silence.

"I'm not going away," said the boy, refusing to put his arms in the sleeves of his coat. His sister went to him, threw her arms about him and, looking up at her father, said:

"You shan't take Robbie away."

The mother gently tried to separate the children, but they clung to each other and to her. She looked a roseate appeal to her husband for help.

"Come, come, little girl," he said, laying his hand on the soft little arm. But she only clung the tighter to her brother and her mother.

"Papa," said the boy, "take mamma and Ethel, and I'll go with you."

"No, no," said the girl; "you and papa stay here with mamma and me."

Seizing her father's hand, she tried to put it round herself, her brother and her mother. The boy, seeing what she was endeavoring to do, caught his mother's hand and tried to do the same. The mother looked at the father. The eyes of both were wet. Then the father arose and beckoned his wife to join him in another room.

"Sweetheart," he said and paused. The words he would speak were choking in his throat. Finally he found voice to go on: "Give me another trial. I was—well, crazy, to talk to you as I did. Forgive me. I think I can go forever without"—

He could not bear to designate the brutality of what he had said.

She covered her face with her hands; he went to her and put his arms about her.

"For their sake, for yours, I promise that I will never again lose my self control."

"I will try to bear with you as you bear with me," she moaned. "For their sakes perhaps we can"—

"We must."

When they left the room the father went down and dismissed the carriage at the door, while the mother went to the children.

"Papa and Robbie are not going away," she said, kissing them.

The children clapped their hands and capered about the room.

That was their last violent quarrel. Both placed a guard upon their tongues and when the choler rose recalled the scene of their former intended parting. Meanwhile marital association as well as the children was drawing them closer together.

The undersigned will sell at public sale his farm containing 158 ¾ acres, more or less, situated in Franklin township, midway between Seven Stars and McKnightstown, one half mile north of Lincoln Highway, improved with a two story brick house 28 x 36, containing ten rooms; two story out-kitchen; bank barn, 50 x 84; and all necessary outbuildings. Marsh Creek runs through the farm near the house. A well of never-failing water at the house. Some fruit trees and about twelve acres of timber at one end of the farm.

Persons wishing to see the farm can call on the undersigned residing at Mummasburg.

Sale to begin at 2:00 o'clock, when terms will be made known by

JACOB F. BUCHER,
R5, Gettysburg, Pa.

I. N. Lightner, Auctioneer.

ALSO at the same time and place I will offer my tract of land near Mummasburg, along the road leading to Gettysburg, in Franklin township, containing twenty four acres, more or less. There is a shed on the land; some fruit trees, also young fruit trees. A desirable place for building a house on the land.

Persons wishing to see the tract of land can call on Jacob F. Bucher, residing along side of said tract at Mummasburg, or write to owner.

Terms made known on day of sale.
